HEYY THERE! So glad you are checking out small groups, it will be a blessing no matter which small group you join! A little bit 'bout myself: I enjoy napping on the floor, chewing quickly, swimming, walking slowly, and catching frisbees... no I'm not a talking dog, I promise! This year my goal in small group is to go through the gospel books, because I believe no matter how young or how mature of a Christian we are, we can always be preaching the gospel to ourselves on a daily basis. In going through the gospel books, I hope that we may grow in our love for God, to know Him and know what He has done and to then love, serve, and encourage one another as we live our lives alongside one another in all the different seasons. Anyways if you're interested, come chat with me!

Hello! I am a third year Psychology major who really, really likes going to Trader Joe's, jamming to Christmas music year-round, running outdoors, and eating Korean food. This year for small group, I hope that as we study God's word, pray, and share life together, that we would grow in our love and praise for God, learn to cherish and delight in His Word, and be a source of encouragement and love to one another. In terms of specific lesson plans, I have a few ideas in mind, but whatever it is we will be going over, it will definitely involve delving into Scripture! I'm so glad that you are interested in joining a small group! Feel free to hit me up if you want to ask about small group or even if you want some TJ's snack recommendations. I'm excited to meet you!

Hi there! I'm a fourth-year chemical engineering major, and among the many things I enjoy are running, reading, eating Goldfish, and petting other people's dogs.

This year in small group, I hope to grow alongside you in a love for the Lord and in an understanding of the incredible joy that we can find in knowing Him, so that we might strive to glorify Him in every aspect of our lives. There are a number of practical ways that this might take place, whether through studying Scripture (perhaps Philippians), discussing Christian books, praying for each other, or challenging and pursuing accountability with one another through conversation--hopefully all of these and more. I'd love to get to know you, so if you're interested in small group, have any questions, or just want to chat, feel free to come say hi or send me an email!

Hello!! So happy you've decided to join a small group! I'm a third year Biology major, hoping to pursue physical therapy. I also like cows (they're cute and tasty!), good food, dance, and discovering more and more of God's magnificent character and story in His Word! By God's grace, small group will hopefully be a place where we can learn what it is to follow Christ (Matt. 4:19) together, whether through studying Scripture, prayer, or practical day-by-day living. Please message me if you're interested, I would love to meet you and chat about what you would like to learn! :)

Hello friends!

I'm a fourth-year Math/Applied Science major (preliminary answers: yes, math is hard; yes, I do like it) possibly with a Specialization in Computing. I like spicy food, tea, knitting, and staying indoors :). My hope for small group this year is that it would be a place of mutual encouragement and accountability as we strive to increase our love and joy in our God—to fundamentally see why He is more than worthy of all our praise—and in doing so, fight sin/temptation alongside each other and grow in love and care for the Church during our college years. So...come find me anytime!! I'd love to meet you :)

Tl;dr: college is hard; Jesus makes it better.
